Read before using your Atari video entertainment system.

A very small percentage of individuals may experience epileptic seizures when exposed to certain light patterns. Exposure to these patterns or backgrounds on a television screen or while playing video games may induce an epileptic seizure in these individuals. Certain conditions may induce previously undetected epileptic symptoms even in persons who have no history of epilepsy. If you, or anyone in your family, has an epileptic condition, consult your physician prior to playing. If you experience any of the following symptoms while playing a video game — dizziness, altered vision, eye or muscle twitches, loss of awareness, disorientation, any involuntary movement, or convulsions — IMMEDIATELY discontinue use and consult your physician before resuming play.

WARNING to owners of projection televisions:

Still pictures or images may cause permanent picture-tube damage or mark the phosphor of the CRT. Avoid repeated or extended use of video games on large-screen projection televisions.

SEVEN CENTURIES AGO, A LARGE

meteor struck the earth. The shock waves from the resultant explosion caused the premature detonation of a large percentage of the world's nuclear weapons stockpile. Continents crumbled and untold billions died. Civilization ended almost overnight. This event is referred to as the "Great Catastrophe."

But mankind was not alone... The race of immortals, each vying to be the last and claim the elusive prize, were present, although they could do nothing but stand and watch while the world died.

These immortals, who until this point had kept themselves separate from the problems of mankind, met together on what has now become known as the Hill of Oaths. Here they decided to lay down their arms and dedicate their lives to gathering all the knowledge necessary to allow mankind to rebuild. They all swore not to kill another immortal and became Jettators, all but one...

This was Kortan. He refused to take the vow and instead declared himself the last immortal. He was challenged by Connor Macleod, who, having already taken the vow, could not win. He was quickly dispatched, but his sacrifice was not in vain for it allowed the remaining Jettators to amend their vow. They would wait for the birth of another immortal. When he became old enough to handle the responsibility, they would give all their knowledge to him. This immortal, unbound by the oath the rest had taken, could defeat Kortan.

And so they waited. Kortan built himself the mighty city of Moganda and from there he ruled over the tattered remnants of mankind. The Jettators scattered to the four winds leaving one of their number, Ramirez, to wait for the new immortal, the saviour of mankind, to be born.

YOU ARE QUENTIN MACLEOD.

Until recently you lived out your life with the Dundee clan in the highlands. That all changed when Kortan's hunters attacked your village on a slave raid. During the attack, you suffered a mortal wound and 'died.' Somehow, you have been regenerated or born again, but your previous life has been utterly destroyed. Your mother has been murdered and your people captured. As the game opens, you are alone and defenseless in the burned-out village that used to be your home. You must find some way to rescue the Dundeels and Clyde, your little sister, from Kortan.

In addition to saving your adopted family and clan, you must solve the mystery of your identity. Your mother told you on her deathbed that you were not her child. A stranger brought you to her soon after you were born. She called you 'The Highlander' and told you that Ramirez, the Jettator selected to wait for you, would find you and help you fulfil your mysterious destiny.
